Technical Field The present invention generally relates to a printed circuit board and a method of manufacturing the same, and more particularly, to a printed circuit board having a copper pad and a method of manufacturing the same. 2. Description of Related Art A copper pad is usually formed in a Printed Circuit Board (PCB) in order to be electrically connected with a semiconductor chip, or electrically connected with a wire. Generally, a copper pad is manufactured by electroplating a copper film on a surface of the PCB, and then etching to remove the copper film formed on the areas of the PCB that do not form the copper pad. However, as the PCB becomes finer and thinner in the future, the copper film formed on the surface of the PCB generally has a poor thickness and a poor adhesion to the surface of the PCB, which leads to short circuit between the copper pads on the surface of the PCB and the conductive trace or the lead-out line of the semiconductor chip, or a poor electrical contact between the copper pad and the wire. Thus, the quality of the PCB will be affected. Therefore, there is a need to provide a printed circuit board having a copper pad and a method of manufacturing the same to solve the above-mentioned problems._4k_2$ is equal to that of the original code. However, as can be seen in Table \[table:16Qbic\], the ideal distance of the new code is d_4k_2 but the shortest distance of the $(4k_2,4k_2,d_2)$ stabilizer code is $2k_2$, which is better than the original code. Note that the $4k_2$ self-orthogonal stabilizer of this code is the complementary code of the original one. If we use a d_2-weight code to code the logical states of the qubits, the the d_2-weight of the $4k_2$ stabilizer is equal to the original d_2-weight of the code. However, if we use a d_4k_2-weight code to code the logical states of the qubits
